

A: This definitely doesn't look like plain text. Probably it is encrypted or encoded in some other way so that only a special program can view it. It also looks like it might be in a binary format, not plain text. You need to find the right software to open it and hopefully that will bring you the decryption key. A: I think that you're trying to move data from an old version of Virtual DJ to a newer version. However, the "data" file is probably a zip/rar archive. Unzip it and you'll find two.txt files. Those will be your instructions and keys for your new version. The Absence of Memory in Live Is No Longer For many years I have been fascinated by the relationships of music, memory and the live performance itself. This fascination led me to develop a project called the Absence of Memory. It's an ongoing piece of audio art that uses the granular qualities of sound, memory and the live performance to create an evocative and intimate portrait of the moment that music makes something of a memory come alive in the present. I am currently seeking funding to carry on this project indefinitely! I am open to new collaborations and sounds. The nav-bar div should be a fixed one, and the div (content area) can be moved up and down when the screen is re-sized. I don't know how to do this. I tried float, but it doesn't work. Please help!
