Furry Shakespeare is a text-based comedy-drama that explores Shakespeare's plays, exploring the original characters, and characters from them through a furry lens. Interactions will include different characters with different play areas, challenges like "Enter a mouse hole at the rear of a stage" and "Find the secret pocket of Hamlet and read the note" and more. Play your own way to explore how we see the characters, and get more out of the text than usual. Recommended By Curators January 29, 2019 The most expressive, sad and tragic tale of all time? Hamlet must be that, according to the debate of two New Zealand siblings who have shed light on the long debated, enigmatic and questionable prince's play - once and for all. The quest to unravel the enigma of Shakespeare's most famous play could have ended tragically for fan Joel Sykes and sister Sophia, who were about to attempt to solve the mystery of Hamlet's doubts, despair and despair in nine episodes spanning from 2018 to 2020. Despite the death of some characters along the way, the siblings' quest to reveal the true intention of Hamlet's most famous play is, by the clock, about to end. For the full duration of the quest, the Hamlet brothers' bodies and minds are scanned daily to find the best possible outcome for the unfolding events. How accurate is the record that the family - and ourselves - sees? Only time will tell. The game's clock will count the days and nights, so we will know if the siblings will decipher the true intent of Hamlet's famous lines. Is this play not a mystery? Find out. • Game inspired by the siblings' quest and their work. • Questions include: 'What is the source of Hamlet's doubt?', 'What did Hamlet mean to say?', 'What did Shakespeare mean by his famous lines?' and more. • Play: - Search for hidden messages around the world - Play the famous lines with different assumptions - Listen to wise words from the greatest playwright of all time What are you waiting for? these. After you beat the game you can play some secret missions. Netbooks may be the cheapest PC solutions that are hitting the PC shelves, but they're making a serious impact on the availability and popularity of Netbooks. Computer manufacturers are shifting towards making Netbooks more of a full-fledged solution than just a cheap alternative to a laptop. The latest from such a company is a new version of the Aspire A100. The Aspire A100 is similar in almost every way to the netbook offerings from Aspire, now owned by Acer, Inc., with even the same surface area. That's because the Aspire A100 has been unveiled by the company's new "all-in-one" line - the Aspire Switch, powered by Acer and Aspire's own Atom-based netbook platform. The Aspire A100 is similar to a netbook in every way, except for the price and the lack of access to physical ports like a mouse or keyboard. It also has the same 10.1-inch screen, 11.6mm thickness and almost the same 800x600 resolution as the Aspire One. That means it looks and feels very similar to any other netbook, both good and bad. The good side is the compact size, small weight, slim profile, lower price of under USD 250, full access to Windows XP Home, the new Intel Atom processor with 800MHz and the latest integrated Intel GMA 950 graphics supporting HD 1280x800 resolution. On the backside you will find a 1.2MP webcam, and underneath the netbook there is a 7-in-1 memory card c9d1549cdd

So, I'm very proud to have created the (in my opinion) second best music pack of all time for this game. I'm really proud of the way it turned out. This pack is the result of a few weeks of hard work, recording my ideas about the soundtrack and my very first experience in creating a not-obvious-understanding-layer-based-background-music track. Unfortunately, I had the chance to test this pack, but I wasn't able to include in the main release the one I'm currently most proud of (namely the conflict-track) and the King of Ironfist-track. It was a good lesson on how to make (or better, create the foundation for) a music pack -i.e- Making it as you want to, for all the diversity you want to present to the player and the already large existing music-library of the game. ( I had the chance to work on these two tracks since 2004 but it wasn't until recently that I had the chance to test this pack. And I'm really happy about it ) So, this pack contains; Background Music Only, Theme's Variations on the Several Stages, a OST, You can also preview the OST within the music pack and enjoy it. As you play you hear, how the theme's variations progress as you progress through the playable stage sections, and, again, (once you've finished the whole stage at the boss-section), the track overlaps with the boss theme. There are two tracks for each stage. The first is a theme alone, which is played by only the Title-Boss if you manage to defeat it. The other is the combination track which plays just once, at the end of the stage. The 3 tracks are listed as follows; Stage 1: "The Encounters" Stage 2: "The Open-Sea" Stage 3: "The Throne of Oblivion" Stage 4: "The Valoey of Death" Stage 5: "The Way Back to The Past" Stage 6: "The King of Ironfist" Stage 7: "The Court of Queen Lenasia" Stage 8: "The Battlefield of Akatus" Stage 9: "The Lost Chambers of the Memmius Machine" The Ultimate Title
