But it didn't take long before he realized that he was much more than his child's parent — he also had a movie to make. So he decided that his first day of vacation with his young son would be spent teaching him to be a director. Thus, the now 20-year-old Larz enlisted his son Cameron, along with a contingent of his closest friends, to become camera crew. A film called Sons of Teenage Dick (which means "The Filmmakers") was born. After three days in the fire, the film was released on the Internet, and it's been a wild ride ever since. And Larz's heart just seems to be in a million different places, from raising money for AIDS charities, to giving back to the community by relocating to Los Angeles and opening a restaurant called Noodles and Juice. During our conversation, Larz shared the following Q&A: On raising
