Class Escape is a puzzle game that challenges your brain to identify patterns, manipulate ideas, use your creative skills to put all the pieces together. The game has five different rooms that you will need to solve in order to be able to explore the next room. In each room, you will be presented with a series of puzzles that test your abilities as a problem solver. As each puzzle is solved, you will be presented with more options to choose from. You will be constantly told what is expected out of you and how you are progressing. There are five rooms in Class Escape and you are only allowed to enter the next room after you solve the previous room. When you've finally succeeded in solving the final puzzle of the final room, the instructor will congratulate you on completing the game. If you have any problems, or any suggestions, please let me know. A: I've done a few puzzle games and I can do something for you. There is a page at which you need to input a word and put it in the beginning of the sentence. Just type in the longest word that you can think of or are able to input. If you can get the longest word of a sentence that fits you, you'll have the highest possible score. But, there is a slight problem: It's not words, it's acronyms. For example, the sentence: "We're working on the source code" could be written: "WEWEAR" The algorithm that the website uses should handle them properly, but I want to write you a few tips in case the script doesn't work for you. 1) The first letter, W, has two letters before it: We, an apostrophe, and a lowercase 'e'. 2) We need to ignore spaces and upper-case letters. You are only inputting words, so these letters will not appear in a game if there is a space or upper-case letter. You can check by inputting spaces and upper-case letters into the input box. There should be a 'Read Only' option. 3) Take a look at the last word you put. Does it start with WEW? If so, you can try next, or the same word starting with EE or EEW. For example: WEW, EE, and EEW are all correct. If the last word doesn't start with WEW or EE, just move on to the next d41b202975

State's Education Department Says it Has Not Committed to Allocating $100M Credit Claimed by Disability Law Firm Last week, the Attorney General's Office (AGO) announced it had won a major reversal of Ohio's exemption law, defeating decades of abuse of the state's "maximum funding" program, over $100M in federal disability benefits that the State had been illegally denying to disabled, parental surrogates. The State was also failing to provide special education services for thousands of disabled students. The AGO also announced it had reached an agreement with the Chief Justice to ensure that disabled students now get both special education and disability benefits by reimbursing them for the portion of their benefits used to pay for the services they need in order to be educated. The State, however, says it has not committed to funding the claims of the Disability Law Firm of which I am a partner and client. Disability Law Firm is the firm that conducted the audits that caught the state's denial of benefits. We sued the state, the governor, the Attorney General and others and won. The administration of Gov. Kasich, however, is saying they will not challenge our legal standing to sue in Ohio courts, but only in federal courts. Judge Michael H. Watson, who is presiding over this lengthy case, is holding a Special Session today (Wednesday) to see what needs to be resolved before the AGO and the Department of Education complete the process of transferring $100M back to the taxpayers it was stolen from. We were required to complete a "call-back" audit with the state to show by what dates it was receiving checks in the first place. We were surprised by this demand when we were already caught with an audit of in which we documented the betrayal by state employees in the Office of the Children's Services Director at the time, Maryellen O'Neill. The state claims that this is a simple “hierarchy” issue with regard to who must sign a “minutes of proceedings” document that will be the legal basis for an order of this court to allow state officials to transfer funds back to the taxpayers. The Attorney General and the Department of Education say they are not signing the call back document. I believe that this is a coordinated effort by State Attorney General Mike Dewine and Department of Education Chief of Staff Jenni Holcomb to try to distance themselves from our litigation, but
