Currently I'm looking for the best way to do this and don't need a full answer for this, only a pointer in the right direction. My idea: Select all entries in the database by index Update index to -1 Create new entry with index -1 Is it OK to remove entries from an sqlite table with this approach? Is there a cleaner/more efficient way to do this? Thanks in advance! A: According to the docs, you can delete entries using a cursor to iterate over the table. You can also delete entries using a query as shown below. To delete the first entry, create a raw query for the desired row with the forRowid method. private void deleteUserFromSqliteDb(DatabaseHelper dbHelper, String username){ String DEL_USER_QUERY = "DELETE FROM " + TABLE_USERS + " WHERE " + COL_EMAIL + " = '" + username + "';"; dbHelper.getWritableDatabase().rawQuery(DEL_USER_QUERY, null); } If you want to delete all entries which is not a good idea, you can also do a DELETE FROM *.
