It is a hybrid between the Supersticky Paint Jet Sprayer Paint and the Sticky Plastic. The colors that Vinnie used are the factory bright white and silver. We bought our TNT Sprayer when it first came out. We found it by accident. We were looking for a latex cleaner that would not damage our Plastiboard. We couldn't find anything but decided to try a 30 sprayer. There was a smaller one as well but the spray nozzle was going in and out due to the fact it was a plastic tip. The 30 sprayer not only filled the stencil and then had more space to clean the stencil. My stencils are usually extremely dirty and this sprayer works great on a stencil that has a lot of dirt and we are not having to clean the stencil for days. It was great when we found it and we've used it constantly ever since. It has a magnetic tip and works great on a stencil. The tip is great. You can't really get it out of the nozzle (it's glued in) but the hose comes with a clip for the tip to go into so you can take it out and wash it off with soap and water. We are not a company. We are a group of people who have been using this nozzle for years. We hope you like our website and if you have any questions email me at volling@hotmail.com. You can send us a picture or what model you have and we will try to help you out. I REALLY LOVE THIS PRODUCT!!!! of a substance to tissue, and to a method of using the syringe. More particularly, the invention relates to a syringe for the controlled delivery of a substance to tissue which includes a cannula having a distal end for insertion into the tissue and a proximal end, a plunger slideably disposed within the cannula for delivering a substance from the syringe, a piston sealingly engaged with the plunger to prevent the substance from being expelled from the syringe when the plunger is in a first position, and a deformable distal end cap engagement member for affixing the distal end of the cannula in the patient's tissue. Syringes of the type described above are commonly used to deliver a substance to a patient, or more particularly, to a subcutaneous tissue layer of the patient. These syringes are well known to those of skill in the art, and include a removable cannula having a distal end, a proximal end, and a lumen extending between the proximal and distal ends. A plunger is slideably disposed within the cannula and serves to deliver a substance through the lumen and out the distal end. A piston, which serves as an elastomeric seal between the piston and the lumen, is slideably engaged with the plunger and sealingly engages the proximal end of the cannula. The syringe is placed such that the distal end of the cannula is inserted into a tissue of the patient, and the plunger is then moved distally in the lumen of the cannula to expel the substance from the syringe and out the distal end of the cannula. The distal end of the cannula is often, but not always, affixed to the tissue of the patient by a retaining member, such as an
