Cracking Adobe Photoshop is a bit more involved, but it can be done. First, you'll need to download a program called a keygen. This is a program that will generate a valid serial number for you, so that you can activate the full version of the software without having to pay for it. After the keygen is downloaded, run it and generate a valid serial number. Then, launch Adobe Photoshop and enter the serial number. You should now have a fully functional version of the software. Just remember, cracking software is illegal and punishable by law, so use it at your own risk.

The new Layers Panel: it's new, but it's optional. In Lightroom RC5 it stays grayed-out until you click the arrow next to the gear icon. After that, all you need to do is to click and drag your mouse over an empty part of the desktop and it will appear here. It's very useful when making multiple different edit steps in a picture. Bottom left corner: the three panels, plus Set Favorites, Time Machine, and File History. When I first tested the new Lightroom, I was delighted by the fact that setting/unsetting a Favorites value in Lightroom was so fast and easy. Set an image, then click the Diamond icon in the triangle on the far right (it goes up, then down), and you will see a list of images in that folder. Telly or Facebook, for example. (Lightroom 5.2 doesn't have the old "Thumbnail strips" folder). How easy is that? Bottom middle: the Work button is now a Droplet. (I think the only difference is the way you move a droplet compared to a dot, but both are still basically buttons, including the ability to create new Droplets or move around existing ones. Once you know the way to operate, it's the same in both. But the new Lightroom program is gorgeous!) Fine details in the custom image work are excellent, especially when it comes to skin tones. I've been playing around with the "Create a Custom Image" feature, and it's exactly as advertised, and blends well with my existing layers in the file. I've even tried out some of the "wildcard" brushes in the Custom Brush panel and they've all come up big.
